Learn about your thyroid at online 'summit'

Dear Readers: Are you tired and frequently cold? Do you have poor memory? Are you overweight and losing hair? All of these symptoms could be connected to one thing: low thyroid hormone levels in the body.

It's worth testing for, but the problem is that conventional tests miss a lot of thyroid disorders. You're told it's normal when you feel terrible. If overlooked, you'll be on the medication merry-go-round, and you better hold on.

In the past year, I've been involved in a special project, my best professional accomplishment. I've been working closely with thyroid expert Dr. David Brownstein in creating a free online experience, called The Thyroid Summit, to enable anyone from around the world to watch a slide presentation from home. We will be broadcasting from June 2-9.

We've interviewed 32 experts including: Dr. Jacob Teitelbaum,

Dr. Jonathan Wright, Dr. Kent Holtorf, Dr. Tom O'Bryan, celebrity nutritionist JJ Virgin, activist Mary Shomon and Mike Adams, founder of Natural News.

If you're not aware of a thyroid problem, you could develop psychological, cardiovascular and neurological disorders.

At the thyroid summit, you will learn:

How anxiety, mood swings and depression are tied to the thyroid.

How certain medications can induce thyroid disease.

Why thyroid patients often get chronic fatigue and fibromyalgia diagnoses.

Which lab tests uncover it.

Which natural remedies work to relieve symptoms.

Which medications and supplements help, and which harm.

To sign up, go to TheThyroidSummit.com. I'll see you online.
