

Addicted to Sugar?

WHETHER YOU BELIEVE SUGAR ADDICTION IS REAL OR NOT, YOU MAY HAVE CRAVINGS THAT ARE HARD TO OVERCOME. HERE'S HELP. By Gale Maleskey, MS, RD

IF YOU'RE LIKE MOST AMERICANS, YOU'RE EATING A LOT OF SUGAR—ABOUT 150 POUNDS A YEAR, or 22 teaspoons a day—well over the recommended limits of 6 teaspoons for women and 9 teaspoons for men. About 120 pounds of that is from processed foods, says Dr. Jacob Teitelbaum, author of The Beat Sugar Addiction Now Cookbook. The type of sugar—high-fructose corn syrup or cane sugar, for instance—isn't as important as the amount, Teitelbaum says. "People are getting up to one-third of their daily calories from sugar and white flour, and it's creating an epidemic in Type 2 diabetes and obesity." If you're wondering whether you're addicted to sugar, you probably are, Teitelbaum says. His suggestions for cutting back on the sweet stuff:

 Go cold turkey on the worst offenders: sodas, sweet tea, energy drinks and some sports drinks and juices.

 Satisfy your sweet tooth with stevia, a natural, no-calorie sweetener available in products like Truvia and Stevia in the Raw.

 Read labels to figure out which foods you eat have the most sugar. Divide the sugar grams per serving by 4 to convert to teaspoons. "If it's 1 or 2 teaspoons per serving, you might be OK with that," Teitelbaum says. "If it's 7 teaspoons per serving, you might say 'No way!'"

 Include protein in meals and snacks to keep your blood sugar stable.
