

Tara Reid HEALTH

PARTY-HEARTY "American Pie" actress Tara Reid looks like she's facing a new medical scare!

On Feb. 3, the 38-year-old beauty was photographed looking concerned as she left The Encino Breast Care Center in Los Angeles.

"She was there for about two hours," revealed an eyewitness. "She appeared visibly distraught and was dressed down with very little makeup on. It looked like she had a medical scare."

On its website, The Encino Breast Care Center says it provides ultrasounds, mammograms and bone density scans, and focuses on "providing women with optimal breast care."

Tara was spotted exiting the center holding what appeared to be imaging results.

While her publicist told The ENQUIRER that "Tara just had an annual exam, nothing unusual," the "Sharknado" star has had problems with her breasts in the past. In 2004, Tara had two botched plastic surgery procedures, including a breast enhancement and joint liposuction. She later suffered a wardrobe malfunction which showed scarring and damage to her nipples.

“She appeared visibly distraught”

Tara meets up with boyfriend Erez Eisen and his daughter in Beverly Hills on Jan. 28

The nightlife-loving star – who's currently dating 33-year-old Erez Eisen of the "Infected Mushroom" band – has also subjected her body to a lot of wear and tear over the years. In 2007, Tara was secretly hospitalized after docs discovered she had elevated liver enzymes, a condition which can be triggered by alcohol. The following year, the actress went through a 60-day rehab program, and The ENQUIRER revealed that her weight had plunged 15 pounds after her boozing spun out of control.

DR. JACOB TEITELBAUM, A HAWAII-BASED physician who specializes in metabolic disorders but has not treated the actress, said at the time that Tara may suffer from hepatitis and pancreatitis – inflammation of the liver and pancreas.

And in October 2012, The ENQUIRER reported Tara had fallen back into her old bad habits. After a night of partying in St. Tropez, France, the boozy blonde attempted to climb atop a parked motorcycle and tumbled to the ground, nearly baring her butt to onlookers.

But these days, Tara insists, "Life is great," and she's celebrating her "Sharknado" sequel that began filming in New York. Syfy's pop culture TV movie is scheduled to premiere in July. Let's hope that Tara doesn't have a new medical problem to contend with!

by MARTIN DRYAN
 tips@nationalenquirer.com
 and BRETTE TROST

Wild times of TRAINWRECK TARA

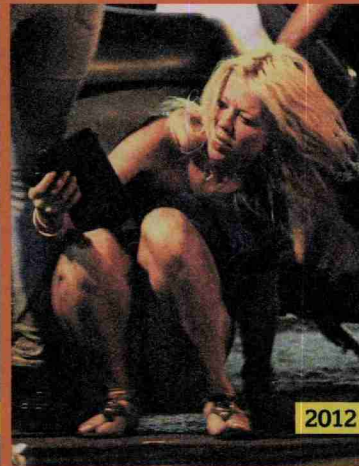

2004

2005

2008

2012

The blonde hottie has a long history of drunken staggering and falling down in public. At left, a wardrobe malfunction at a birthday bash for Sean Combs revealed a scarred nipple

CRISIS?

FEB. 3, 2014

The actress left The Encino Breast Care Center clutching what appeared to be imaging results

Party girl looks upset after
VISIT TO BREAST CARE CLINIC